

Performance Evaluation Test of F₂ Cedar

FTBC is developing various superior varieties in forest tree breeding project , and it is also important to provide trait grading information of important traits such as growth and wood properties to related organizations.

In order to evaluate performances of F₂ cedar trees, FTBC has planted seedlings which are grown from these crosses along with conventional seedlings. FTBC is going to examine the differences in growth and other traits.